Jesus: the Son of God (continued)

Bryan Hodge

(5) He is the Son of God in the sense of being King. Brad Bromling has written, "Historically the term had a royal connotation for many nations of the Ancient Near East. It was commonplace for Egyptian, Babylonian, Canaanite, and Roman rulers to be called 'Son of God'" (Bromling, What Does it Mean to say Jesus is "Son of God"?, apologeticspress.org). We have already pointed out that this phrase was used of the kings who descended from David (1 Sam 7:12-16). Hebrews 1:5a reads: "For to which of the angels did He ever say: 'You are My Son, today I have begotten You'?" This is a quotation from Psalm 2:7. It concerns the coronation of a king (Psa 2:6-7). This happened when Jesus was resurrected, begotten from the dead (Acts 13:33-34). Hebrews 1:5b reads, "And again, 'I will be to him a Father, and he shall be to Me a Son'?" This is a quotation of 2 Samuel 7:14. It concerns the kings who would descend through David (2 Sam 7:12-16). Jesus is the ultimate fulfillment of this (Acts 13:33-34).

Is there another usage in some contexts? (6) Some believe the "Son of God" is used at times in the sense of Jesus being of divine nature (Now, he certainly is, whether or not this phrase is used in this way in the New Testament). "Son of..." can be used for being "of the order" (Zondervan's Pictorial Dictionary, p. 805). Consider: (a) Jesus healed a man on the Sabbath (John 5:5-9). Jesus angered certain Jews by doing this on the Sabbath (John 5:16). Jesus told them, "My Father has been working until now, and I have been working" (John 5:17). Then, we are told, "Therefore the Jews sought all the more to kill him, because he not only broke the Sabbath, but also said that God was his father, making himself equal with God" (John 5:18). It is one thing to say that God can do something. It is another thing to claim that same right. Moreover, the way he used the term "father," and equated his authority to do what he did with the Father's authority, caused them to conclude that Jesus was claiming in some sense to be one with the Father (cf. John 10:28-33). Was he? Yes! (cf. John 5:21-23). To them, this was blasphemous. Guy N. Woods comments, "He had thus far been to them merely a man who had broken the laws of the Sabbath; now, he appears before them as one claiming to be the Son of God in a fashion characteristic of no other and also equal with God" (Woods, pp. 100-101). (b) Romans 1:3-4, "...Jesus Christ our Lord, who was born of the seed of David according to the flesh, and declared to be the Son of God with power according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead." Some believe that the phrase is used in this passage of "Christ" or "King." Other are convinced that it is being used Jesus' divine nature (The Bible teaches this divine nature. See: John 1:1,14; Phil 2:5-8; Co 1:19; 2:9). Regardless of how one understands this phrase, as it is used in Romans 1:3-4, know this: The resurrection of Jesus is set forth as "proof of his purity, innocence, and Divine approbation" (Clarke's Commentary, Vol. 6, pp. 36-37).

Let us summarize. The phrase, "the Son of God" is used in different ways, in different context. It is used of Jesus' relationship with God on earth (birth, protective care, submission). It is used of Jesus being the chosen one of God (Christ, King). It may or may not be used of divine nature (However, Jesus' divine nature is taught in Scripture).
